

2: Floor plan with garden in the middle

Sekitei is centered around a garden in the center of the site. "Why not start by taking a stroll around the garden?"

You can go directly out to the garden from each guest room, which forms a flow line to the scattered public spaces.

A garden that you can not only "view" from inside, but also "walk around" in. It's nice to have a garden that you can go out to, not just to create a sense of openness and to use as a view.

The changing colors of the flowers and the scents that float around tell you about the changing seasons, and you suddenly become aware of the passage of time. Inside and outside are one, with no boundaries. A garden where you can interact is truly enjoyable.
